

Louis was going to go sailing with his school at All-Aboard. He was nervous because he had never been sailing before. Louis read the accessible information sheets All-Aboard had sent the school and felt much better because he knew what would happen.

When Louis and his classmates arrived at All-Aboard the receptionist welcomed them and showed them to the classroom. This is where they met their instructor, Tom, and volunteer helpers, Anna and Emma.

Tom told everyone what boat they would be going on and who they would be going in with. He explained that the boats Louis would be sailing are called Access 303 boats. They are special boats because they do not capsize, so he couldn't fall in.

Before Louis went on the water, he and his classmates put on spray tops and spray trousers over their clothes, to get them dry and warm. They also put on buoyancy aids.

Tom led everyone out to the boats, helped them get in the boats and showed them how to steer it. When Tom was on the water in his safety boat, Anna and Emma asked if everyone was ready and set them off sailing towards Tom.

Louis found it a lot of fun. He loved the feeling of gliding through the water.

After the session, Louis had a drink in the classroom, and talked to his classmate about how much fun it was to go sailing. He couldn't wait to come back!
